Abstract

A method for providing an enhanced experience associated with a scripting language on a device that does not have the ability to run scripts. The method includes receiving at an application server a script, and sending new information based on executing the script to a device.

5